Northern Public Sentiment --- What Demands.—Ultraists.—Maj. Gen. Banks,

.-Wendell Phillips, Fred. Douglass, J.
B. Gough.—New Books.

Boston, November 3, 1865.

Ens. Press: We are on the eve of a State election. There is no excitement, except in certain localities, about matters outside of any national questions. In regard to those questions the majority is overwhelming. Massachusetts is Republican out and out, and waits patiently for the full development of President Johnson's plans and the meeting of Congress, to see what, on the whole and in the details, is likely to be the indicates a determination to put down the spirit and cause of the rebellion, as effectually as the rebellion itself has been put down. Unless this is done there will be a renewal and a perseverance of agitation until it be accomplished. About all that is asked of politicians is that they will not hurry matters—will not give secessionists in disguise a new opportunity to seek or attain domina-tion, to vex and trouble the country hereafter in the way they have vexed and troubled it heretofore. In other words, the belief is, that, if there is no precipitancy in tionary States, other agencies will, with comparative ease and quietness, bring about the needed pacification and homoge-The victory of assured peace will soon, by the invasion of the South by Northern capital, Northern emigration, carrying with them sound democratic princarrying with them sound democratic prin-ciples and loyalty to democratic institu-tions. Of course there are extreme men, who make a good deal of noise. There are those who must be agitators or nothing, and also those who are ready for the sake of rule and office to grant anything and everything to their old friends—the arro-gant and aristocratic chivalry—they may choose to ask. But these ultraists are not of much account and should not be taken as sure indications of the overwhelming public sentiment. That sentiment is calm, but decided, good-tempered, but in earnest. It has found out, by the terrible revelations of war, what the disturbing elements have been, and it will demand their expulsion from the body politic.

Slavery, and all of the injustice and inhumanity—all that was false in the American social and political system—related to it, must be utterly and entirely abolished. There must be no quibbling or reservation There must be no quibbling or reservation in abandoning forever the doctrine of secession. There must be no assumption of the debt of the treasonable Confederacy, and no repudiation of the debt of the United States. There must be no postponement of the ratification of the amendment to the Constitution, and no denial to manhood, however hued, of personal liberty, and all the privileges and rights belonging to personal liberty. These are the ultimata which will be urged by an irresistible public opinion, not to oppress or trouble the con will be urged by an irresistible public opinion, not to oppress or trouble the conquered, but to bless them, and the whole land, with fruitful and abiding security. These ultimata granted and obtained, all will go smoothly. Resistance to them by any faction will only prolong disturbances, without effecting any change in the determination to acquire them. No party can meet with any permanent success that does not put them into its platform. It is wisdom to see this truth in season, and to acknowledge and act upon it; for the thoroughly loyal and indomitable spirit of the North, and of the liberalism and philanthropy of the age, will frever abandon it.

Leaving a general for a particular sub-

Leaving a general for a particular subject, you have noticed, of course, the nomination of Major General Banks, as Representative to Congress from the 6th District in Massachusetts, to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Mr. Gooch He will be chosen before this reaches you But that is no reason why your readers should not be told of what may almost be called a coup d'etat that they may smile over it. The General got wind of the home—opening, down in Louisiana. He hurried back. Several candidates were a!ready in the field, and the "Little Iron Man" was, to all appearance, an eleventh-hour man, with no chance of going in to win; and yet to all appearance, an eleventh-hour man, with no chance of going in to win; and yet the did! A speech or twoldisarmed all objections. He satisfied all concerned, or enough who were concerned, that he was and had been all right, as a military leader and civil administrator, and that he was and ever had been a legal resident of the Old Bay State. He was bold, plucky, and bore himself with the air of one conscious of perfect rectitude, and in every respect, right side up. His presence waked up the popularity he had formerly enjoyed, and brought to his support the requisite host of friends.

Delegations to be chosen, were chosen to put him through. Other delegations, already appointed, changed front, opponents were out-generaled, he walked up to the goal a conqueror, and will join and be a man of mark among our delegation at Washington in December next. Verily, the game of politics is a queer game elsewhere than in New York. All things considered, however, the return of the late Speaker, "The Bobbin Boy," who always lands on his feet, is not the worst thing that might have happened just at this time. He must represent Massachusetts, and he cannot do this without being about right on all essential polits.

The lecture season has commenced. Wendell Phillips has been eloquently preaching a Gospel of doubt under the title of "the Sauth Victorious," in which he belabored the President and the Republican party, uttered some sober truths, and proved his claim to be what he calls himself, an agitator. Fred. Douglass has nobly vindicated again the rights of his race, and shown. again the rights of his race, and shown, when freed from the trammels of manuscript, that the old fire still burns in him and that his natural force is not abated.

and that his natural force is not abated. Mr. Gough is entertaining large audiences by his dramatic discourses. People crowd to hear him talk of "habit" and other subjects, quite as much for the fun of the thing as for edification. The list of orators in the several courses, and their topics indicate that the lecture room will deal with the that the lecture room will deal with the questions of the day—and especially with the ethics of politics. In the rural districts Lyceum speakers are not as much sought after as formerly; they having put up the price and become a costly luxury, in view of the taxes and expenses of living. Some think the speakers are killing the goose that has laid for them so many golden eggs. A few words about books. If your readers would enjoy some of the sweetest poet-

A few words about books. If your readers would enjoy some of the sweetest poetry of the times, and read pleasant sketchy tales, let them obtain Jean Ingelow's two volumes, published by ktoberts & Co., of this city. If they are in search of truly elegant "gifts" of a literary character, the illustrated "Gems from Tennyson," and "Idyls of the King"—may safely be recommended to them, as they have been issued in the finest style by Ticknor & Field. This house have also added to their "Blue Gold Series" the pleasant verses of Aldrich, Gold Series" the pleasant verses of Aldrich, and brought out besides "Good Company"—selections from noted authors; a translation of the Gulistan, or Rose Garden translation of the Gulistan, or Rose Garden, of the Persian Poet Saade, with an admirable preface by R. W. Emerson; Tales from the Atlantic (including Rev. E. E. Hale's "My Double," and "The Man Without a Country,") and Atlanta in Calydon, the remarkable classic tragedy, in the style of the old Greek drama by Algernon Charles Swinburne,—an author full of promise and destined to take a front rank among modern tined to take a front rank among modern singers. All these works are everything that could be asked for in the way of type, paper and binding, and each of them, after its kind, is of interest to lovers of belles-let-tres. Hurd & Houghton have added to their fine pictorial ventures "Children in the Wood," in verse, with rich colored plates to Wood," in verse, with rich colored plates to tell the pathetic story to the eye. They are also the publishers of Barry Gray's amusingly sat'rical and neatly written "Matrimonial Infelicities," and the memoirs and sermons of the able Christian preacher "Van der Palm." The Euglish novel—a success abroad—"George Sandon; or, A Lost Love," has been reprinted by A. K. Loring. The "mere mention" of these works will show not only that the literary providers be fully and adequately supplied. We are surely to be more of a reading people than we have ever been, and in that fact is hope whole and in the details, is likely to be the "reconstruction" or "restoration," and how far it will secure nationality, and freedom and citizenship to all.

There is no disposition to be hard on the South. On the contrary, there is every desire to exercise towards it all the clemency consistent with safety to the Republic, and the claims of justice and humanity. The Administration is candidly judged, and will be steadily sustained, so long as its course indicates a determination to put down the spirit and cause of the rebellion, as effectually as the rebellion, itself has been nut. It is easy enough to be a local editor if the trail of mysterious items he must be a veritable sleuth-hound. He must be insen sible to the cruelest snubs, and manifest no sense of anger when he is kicked down stairs. He must throw modesty to the dogs, and let his tiger howl. But above all he must be an adept at the art of puffing. The nearer he approches to the blacksmith's bel-lows, the better he will succeed. He must be ready at all times to say something funny in regard to Smith's grocery, or to surround Miss Flounce's millinery establishment with a halo of glowing adjectives. He must be enthusiastic on the subject of hams, yerbose in extolling hardware, and nams, veroose in extolling hardware, and highly imaginative in the matter of dry goods. He must look pleased when invited to walk sixteen squares in the broiling sun, to write a ten line puff for a labor-saving churn or a patent washing machine. He must feel grateful when invited to dine at the Doggnose hotel and writely glowing account. Dogsnose hotel, and writela glowing account of the excellence of the hash and the dura-bility of the beefsteak. If he feels any sense of humiliation in sitting down to a festal gathering, on the occasion of the presentaon of a sword to Captain Sankopanzy, or a set of silver service to a horse inspector, he must smother it, and revenge himself on the champagne and cigars. He must affect to believe that he is invited in a purely so-cial way, and not for the sake of having him cial way, and not for the sake of having him write a good account of the ceremonies, with three columns of speeches in full, for the next morning's paper. If he flags in his description of Hodge's premium bull, or "let's down" in winding up the oil indications of Shovedyke's farm, he must take it kindly for being reproved for his shortcomings. In the manner of show, the local must always be brilliant. He must talk learnedly of panoramas, with a liberal admixture of knowing words, such as, 'warmth,' 'tone,' 'foreshortening,' high lights,' 'foreground,' prospective,' &c.; he must be heavy on concerts, with a capacity must be heavy on concerts, with a capacity to appreciate Miss Squawk's execution of difficult feats in the upper register; he must be ecstatic in praise of double-headed calves, and eloquent in behalf of fat women and living skeletons. All this, and more it takes to be a local.

THE INTRODUCTION OF COOLIES IN THIS COUNTRY.—The New Orleans Picayune makes the following statements concerning a Southern proposition to import coolies: The subject of introducing coolies to cultivate our present untilled and unoccupied plantations has recently engaged the attention of enterprising capitalists and property owners. It is thought the introduction of this description of labor would secure to our people the wholesome influence, now greatly needed, of competition with our freedmen, in securing from them more reg-ular and efficient labor than can at present be expected of them. Without such security, capital is timid, and indisposed to invest in the culture of the great staples, success in which depends on the command and control of the labor for the whole season. An enterprising firm in this city, having abundant means, foreign connections, and a fimiliarity with the whole business of coolie importation, recently addressed Mr. Seward, the Secretary of State, to know whether the United States would aid in, or circ its expection to the experiment of inwhether the United States would aid in, or give its sanction to, the experiment of introducing these laborers into the South. This communication was referred to the Bureau of Immigration, which replied that the coolie trade was prohibited by an act of Congress of 1862. That act makes it a severe penal offense for registered United States ships to engage in what is called the coolie trade—that is, the transportation of Chinese from any part of China to any foreign port, with a view of holding them to servitude, or, for a term of years, as laborers. The same act, however, provides to servifude, or, for a term of years, as laborers. The same act, however, provides that no obstacle shall be made to the voluntary immigration of this people, and, as proof of the voluntary character of such deportation, it requires a certificate of the United States consuls in China. But in referring to this topic, which is being discussed among citizens, we do not propose for the present to go further than to glance at it, as one of the many schemes which have been proposed to resuscitate our present depressed and prostrate agriculture.

SOUTHERN ITEMS.

The Macon (Ga.) Journal says that the abolition of slavery has removed one embarrassment to Southern progress which formerly existed—the aversion of white laborers to come in competition with slaves, and the consequent difficulty in procuring the immigration of foreign white laborers. The Petersburg Express states that Gen. Samuel Cooper, late Adjutant General of the Confederate States, is at the residence of Mark Alexander, in Mecklenburg county, Va., where he has been ever since the surrender of General Lee. His family has recently gone to Maryland. The General is in good health.

Hon. John M. Botts is to be one of th Hon. John M. Botts is to be one of the United States Senators from Virginia. The Norfolk Post says: "There can be little doubt of Mr. Botts' election to the United States Senaté, though General Millson, of Norfolk, has been suggested also. Millson is a man of great intellect and high character. Like Mr. Botts, he has been a Unionist throughout the late struggle." The New Orleans Crescent of October 24,

The Charlottesville (Va.) Chronicle, after reviewing the past, says:

We must take things as we find them.

We are in the Union, and we are going to We are in the Union, and we are going to stay in the Union, and we havetaken oaths to maintain that Union. How do we stand, then? Are we well off or badly off? In a material point of view, we are well off. We are going to be richer and more prosperous than we ever were. We are going to be populous, going to have great cities, going to grow alive with all the forms of industry. With wealth will come knowledge and culture literature, science, art. We shall have ture, literature, science, art. We shall have all this. Our loss is not here. Our loss is a matter of sentiment—it is that of our distinctiveness as a race. Virginia—the South —has lost its individuality.

An editorial article in the Charleston Courier, on the recent elections in the North, contains the following passage: "Politicians who take their cue from such men as Vallandigham, and applaud the merits of the Chicago platform, will be very sure to fail in any Northern election. Possibly these men may think they are doing the South a service by still clinging to their ridiculous and false notions, where inset the contrary to the truth. The South as just the contrary is the truth. The South will be satisfied if the North will support President Johnson. It does not ask if the victors are Democrats or Republicans, so long as they stand true to the Government. It is time this Chicago platform nonsense and impudence was kicked into oblivion. It would be far better for the South to seek protection of the most radical of the Republicans than allow itself to be humbugged by the 'Copperhead' faction."

The Richmond Republic says that on Thursday a little difficulty arose between a Thursday a little difficulty arose between a preacher and a citizen of secular pursuits, when the latter waxed exceedingly wroth, and gave the preacher the lie. The peaceful profession of the Divine was forgotten for an instant; he temporarily fell from grace, and gave his antagonist a stunning blow, which felled him to the earth. Served him right.

The Richmond papers complain of the high rents in that city. They are so high, they say, that people are deterred from settling there. The Republic gives a case in point: "A gentleman from Philadelphia was solicited to open a branch of his house here. He came on with the determination. here. He came on with the determination of doing so, and of putting in a stock worth thirty thousand dollars. He intended to employ a citizen of Richmond, and em-powering him to employ such men as he might need. He went from one end of the city to the other, and could not get a suita-ble house for less than five thousand dollars a year—more than a similar house would cost on Broadway, New York. He went home disgusted. Many persons are getting more rent for one year than it cost

AN ORIGINAL MINIATURE OF WASHING TON.—We were shown, yesterday, an original miniature, on ivory, of Washington, executed in Philadelphia, in 1796, by the grandfather of Charles L. Petticolas, Esq., he popular professor of music of this city in whose possession it now is.

Mr. P., whose personal integrity and character is without a superior in our city, youches for the authenticity of this painting—long a family treasure—and supports his statement by the most conclusive documentary evidence.

The portrait differs somewhat from the treditionary (Washington) traditionary "Washington" from which we are all familiar, although no one would fail at the most casual glance to recognize the likeness. In the popular portraits of Wash-ington, there is a smoothness and youthful-ness about the cheeks which contrasts too strongly with the gray hair, and with what we know of his age at the time of the sit-ting. There is none of this in the Petticoting. There is none of this in the Petticolas portrait, which preserves, while it softens, every mark of age appropriate to the time of life of the distinguished subject. We think there is also a more natural air in this picture than in any we have ever seen. The standard picture of Washington suggests to every observer the thought that he had arranged himself for a drawing. There is none of that here, and yet none of the simple dignity and majesty and benignity of the face is lost. You feel that it is the face of a man whose mind was rarely thrown from its equipoise, whose judgment was uniformly reliable, and at the same time one whose conscience was never

Maj. Gen. Thomas Wood has been appointed to the command of the Department of Mississippi, made vacant by the resignation of Gen. Slocum.

A dispatch from Toronto says that the telegrams from that city to a New York paper, that there is great excitement there on account of apprehended Fenian operations, are without the slightest foundation.

The Secretary of the Interior has decided can only be resumed on completion of proof of the pensioner's right to be restored to the

The occupant of the house in Washington, where President Lincoln died, has made a claim for damage done to the house and furniture on the night of the assassination. Relic hunters, it was thought, would buy the furniture at a high price. Large numbers visit Ford's Theater daily.

The Savannah Advertiser says: "We are happy to state the arrival home of General William J. Hardee, who reached the city on Sunday evening last. The friends of this truly able gentleman and soldier will, no doubt, be pleased to learn that he intends, at an early day, to resume the labors of his legitimate calling."

The majority for Ward, the Republican candidate for Governor of New Jersey, will about 3000. Last fall the Democrats carried the State by over 7000 majority. The Republicans will have one majority in the State Senate and sixteen majority in the House, which renders the ratification of the Constitutional amendment certain.

The sentence of Wirz by the Military Commission has been approved by the President, and he will be hung on Friday. Mr. Schade, one of his counsel, called upon the President yesterday to endeavor to have the sentence commuted. He urged as a reason why the sentence should be commuted that Wirz is in very feeble health, and would not probably live six

About two years ago the late Lord Pal-merston sent to Mr. Adams, then, as now, United States minister in London, a note demanding explanations for something done by the Government at Washington. The tone of the note was replete with the insolence so natural to Palmerston, with an insolence so natural to Palmerston, with an added edge derived from his sympathy with the rebels. Mr. Adams sent it back, with the information that official communications could only be received by him through the Secretary of Foreign Affairs, and that the author of this piece of imper-tinence must never presume to address him again. It was many months before a reconciliation took place between them.

nent man was in his official department, much the sort of room in which a London much the sort of room in which a London attorney might be imagined giving audience to his clients. The General was not in uniform, and plainly dressed. The portraits of him are faithful representations of his square and spacious forehead, and of the settled and regular, but not strongly marked features below. A military officer was in attendance upon him, who was of old Ludian descent, a person somewhat above in attendance upon him, who was of old Indian descent, a person somewhat above the ordinary hight, whose complexion and features bespoke his origin, but whose civilized experiences had given him a little more flesh than would seem to have been common among his ancestors.

This stately descendant from the sons of the old wilderness gave me a cordial grasp of the hand on our being introduced. The manner of the General was simple and quiet. I soon saw he was a man of few words, and had reason to think that his words were usually well chosen. After a few commonplaces had passed he began to speak freely on public affairs. The tone of the English press concerning the military action of the North seemed to have impressed him unfavorably. "If your newspapers are to be believed," said the soldier, who is second to none of his time, "we never went into the field but to be beaten. I have been in more engagements than any other man in the service, and have not I have been in more engagements than any other man in the service, and have not been beaten yet. On the continent of Europe, too, the disposition, it appears, has been to harp on the same string. Friends who have visited your country and France tell me that, go into what circle they might,

the talk about America all went one way."

In reply, I mentioned some facts which seemed to warrant a somewhat different conclusion. These facts were frankly admitted as tending to show that in England there must after all have been a considerable breath of sympathy, with the North ble breadth of sympathy with the North.
"Say what you will," said the General,
"this war has been the biggest job of its
sort that has been done in this world; and it will be a chapter to itself in the history of war—nothing like it has gone before."

When about to take my leave, I was pleased to hear the General say, "Well, I think I shall come to England some day; but it must not be until I can spare something like a twelvemonth for that part of the world." I did not fail to express my conviction that if he came among us he conviction that if he came among us he would find not a few capable of appreciating what he had done, and of doing so generously. Of Lee the General spoke honorably, describing him as an able man who had made a great mistake. This mistake, I presume, was in committing himself against the Northern cause—the cause, the final success of which the General himself bath of a Rich Man,—Simeon Jennings, of Wellsville, Ohio, died suddenly, while sitting in his chair, last week. He possessed enormous wealth, mostly in the shape of real estate and mortgages on the same. He also owned large interests in a number of Ohio banks. He was noted for his extreme penuriousness and intense devotion to money-getting. Though worth millions, when traveling on the cars he would carry a lunch in his pocket to save the expense of a dinner at an eating-house. He bought a plain brick residence below Wellsville, on the Virginia side of the Ohio river, and made that his home, to escape paying taxes in Ohio on his mortgages, indement notes and morecar. river, and made that his home, to escape paying taxes in Ohio on his mortgages, judgment notes, and money. He always managed somehow to avoid paying a large share of the taxes justly due from him. The heavy Federal income tax nearly broke his heart. He was very obese and gross looking, and for several years drank whisky in large quantities. He was probably the richest man in Ohio. He leaves no direct issue—dying childless. He has several collateral heirs, however, but leaves property enough to bestow a large fortune on each of them. We have not heard that he left any bequests to benevolent objects,

The Fenian movement seems thus far to have been quite a success in the way of getting its members and allies into trouble, A conspiracy, whether gotten up at home or abroad, against the British Government and especially one projected from this country at a time when there is such an irritation of feeling between the two nations as at present exists, could look for nothing but the most determined and summary handling from the British authorities. The introduction of troops and the materiel of war into Ireland under the auspices of any organization or State, and the inauguration of rebellion there, will prove a wholly different undertaking to those concerned from the attempt of a similar character made in one section of this nation a few years ago. Indeed, it has proved so already. Arrests have been made and more are being made in Ireland; and what will prove to be the hardest blow of all to the anything like a respectable show of the movement in that country, is the fact that those arrested are at once put upon trial and will go to immediate punishment for their deeds. None of them need look for another chance during the present conspiracy to aid their cause, unless it be as martyrs. Since the beginning of the thirteenth century, there have been at least eight organized attempts at revolution in that unfortunate island, generally attended by the most revolting cruelty and the blackest treachery on the part of the rebels. That lack of calculation in the Irishman, which sends him rashly and recklessly ahead, gives him a very poor show indeed against the cool, the persistent and practical-headed Englishman. And then, this disparity aside, the advantage is so immensely on the side of the latter, that all attempts on the The Secretary of the Interior has decided that pensions granted prior to the war, to ditizens of rebel States, ceased to accrue from the date of the President's proclamation declaring such States in rebellion, and ernment of the country is in the hands of the English government, most of the officers being appointed by the Crown during pleasure. In 1859 the constabulary force of the different counties and the police of Dublin numbered about 14,000, and the revenue police about 1,200. This force executes the laws, and of itself constitutes a strong force always at hand to strike hard blows against conspiracy in its most vulnerable stage-that of incipiency. On the sea the arm of the Empire is even more owerful for police duty. Looking at the condition of the people of Ireland, we can but regard the encouragement which Americans, whether in official or private positions, have given the Fenian conspiracy as due to a most reckless disregard of principle and a misguided sympathy for the people of Ireland, which must prove very unwelcome to its objects. The hand of the oppressor was already heavy enough. This movement can only make i

So far as this encouragement has resulted from an impulse to retaliate, by hurling at England the weapons she herself has furished us, by her conduct during the war it is doubly reprehensible. Genuine and easonable sympathy-and the genuineness of sympathy which is not reasonable is not worth much-for the Irish, should have withheld encouragement from such a motive.

A calm and wise consideration of our own interests and good name in the future, ought to have led Americans to discourage the movement. We are no apologists for British misrule and oppression of the Irish people, nor have we any feelings but those of indignation for the course of the English Government towards us in our civil struggle. But we would not, therefore, directly General Grant on His Own Achievements aid a conspiracy against that Government, -- A Magazine Writer's Account of a leading, as it inevitably must, to a serious complication of our relations with her, and by the military. Dr. R. Vaughan writes in the last num-to still greater bitterness of feeling on both In Washington I had the privilege of an introduction to General Grant. The emi-England clutches Ireland.

That phase of the conspiracy just developed, looking towards action in Canada. has certainly a much better chance of success, but is just as direct a violation of international law, and indirectly quite as unfortunate for Ireland. But we have no expectation of success even there..

THE ELECTIONS.

Victory again perches upon our standard, to the confusion of our foe. Again the people of Massachusetts, New York, New Jersey, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, and Maryland have, through the ballot-box. said that they still think that the General Government has dealt righteously with rebellions citizens and States.

Massachusetts has elected Bullock (Republican), by about fifty thousand majority, over Couch (Democrat). The Democrats have elected but one Senator in the State.

From New York the returns show a Republican majority ranging from 20,000 to 30,000. General Barlow, who entered the army as a private, is chosen Secretary of State, over General Slocum, Like General Tuttle, of Iowa, General Slocum has cut a sad figure, by offering to sell to a dying and disloyal party his military reputation for a promise of an office.

New Jersey has done most gloriously of all, having given about 3000 majority for the Republican ticket. This is a Republican gain of nearly 10,000 in one year. So she has voted herself out of the dominions of the Camden & Amboy Railroad, and into the Union.

Illineis gives from 10,000 to 15,000 majority against the Democratic candidates,

Minnesota is Union as usual. This victory is important. It makes the labors of Congress much simpler. It strengthens the President in dealing firmly with the rebellious element still active in the Southern States. It will do much towards shaping the action of the reorganizing States. Altogether it is a glorious vic-

THE Democrat says that certain people, like General Logan, "fly from one error into another." Then forsaking the Democratic party, as Gen. Logan did, because it was opposed to the war to save the Union, and supported the rebellion, was flying from an error. So the Democrat thinks, and so we think. Verily, "our apostle" is not so much in need of salt as he was. Identifying himself with those who have fought for four long years to save the Government, and doing what he can to perpetuate that Goverument, now that the war is gloriously ended, is flying into another error, is it? The Democrat answers, yes. But it seems that the New Jersey Democrats, to whom Gen. Logan has been making speeches concerning the duty of freedmen at this june ture of our national affairs, do not agree with this Louisville Democrat. They went to the ballot-box day before yesterday and put it on record that they thought General Logan right.

FENIAN BALL.-We understand that the Fenians of this city are making preparations for a grand ball. Delegates will be present from all the principal cities in the Union. The ball comes off some time during the present month.

The local of the Nashville Press and Times announced that he was glad to meet, the evening previous, John Ulrich, "one of the reportorial corps of the Louisville Democrat." We guess that the proprietors of the Democrat will consider that news. It ertainly is to us.

LOUISVILLE THEATER.—There was another fair audience at the Louisville last night to see the great French Spy, Zee. Her combat scene is truly grand, and is well received by the audience. To-night the Wizard Skiff will be performed. Go and see Zoe.

A FINE CHANCE FOR A SPECULATION. Miss Hetty H. Robinson, of New Bedford, Mass., who-recently contested the will of her aunt, Sylvia Howland, has, by the recent death of her uncle, E. M. Robinson, of San Francisco, fallen heir to $910,000. Before this windfall she was a millionaire.

Wood's THEATER .- Miss Jennie Hight gave more satisfaction as Fanchon than anything she has yet produced. Her shadow dance was very grand indeed; better than we have witnessed for some time. THE BATEMAN CONCERTS .- A crowded finer musical feast placed before it. M'lle Parepa is a vocalist of wonderful power, and with the rich and varied graces of her style she entranced the immense aulience that listened to her. Her "Casta Diva" would have entranced Bellini. We never heard it rendered finer. The "Nightingale Trill" was admirably sung and rapturously applauded. The German song, "Morgen Fensterln," is one that requires rich and varied gifts, but she was fully equal to its requirements. We doubt whether it was ever sung with greater power and beauty than it was last night.

Carl Rosa is a master of the violin. He is a most excellent pupil of the school of Paganini, Ole Bull and Livori. The caprice fantastique performed last night by Carl Rosa is worthy to stand by Paganini's Carnival of Venice.

Mr. Levy is the best cornet player that has ever performed in this city. We have had many masters of that instrument in this city, but no one of them ever equalled Mr. Levy. We have heard many marvels of instrumentation, but we never expected to hear the Carnival of Venice on a cornet. We had that gratification last night and enjoyed it intensely.

The entire performance was fully worthy the attention of the large audience that were at Masonic Temple. There was one pervailing fault of the audience last night. It was entirely too appreciative. Every piece was rapturously encored. This is an improper piece of business. An audience is not justly entitled to any more than the programme announces, but double the mount of the programme was exacted last night. This is ungenerous treatment.
We trust that this excellent troupe will have another large audience to-night. They will amply reward all lovers of music wh may hear them.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28, 1865.
Sir: Your letter of the 18th ultimo, relating to the taxation of hackmen and cartmen, was duly received, and I have given the subject all the attention which has been possible. I have never been fully convinced that the provisions of section 103, which impose a duty upon the gross receipts of persons having the care or management of railroods, canals, steamboats, ships, barges, canal boats, or other vessels, or of steam converges or of stage conclusions, or other vehicles or of stage conclusions, or other vehicles or of stage conclusions, or other vehicles or of stage conclusions. or of stage coaches, or other vessels, or of stage coaches, or other vehicles, employed in the business of transporting passengers or property for hire, were intended to apply to the business of cartmen and hackmen as ordinarily conducted in the large cities.

The phrase "other vehicles" is the one on which their liability has been based. It is true that carts and hacks are vehicles, but is it true that the business in which they are usually employed is the transportation of property and passengers, within the meaning of the law? Railroads, steamboats, canalboats, stage coaches and omnilarge cities. boats, canalboats, stage coaches and omni-buses are employed to convey property and passengers over established routes between fixed points; while it is the business of carts and hacks to gather up property and per sons, and to deliver them at the points o sons, and to deliver them at the points of departure on such routes.

It has been held heretofore that, under the limitation "for hire," persons using their own carts, or hiring the carts of others, exclusively for their own use, were not liable to tax; while those less fortunate, who are obliged to solicit business in the market, and whose opportunities for profit are less favorable, were liable. The principle upon which taxes are imposed is the presumed ability of those who are made liable therefor, either to pay them out of accrued profits, or to recover them from liable therefor, either to pay them out of accrued profits, or to recover them from others by making the proper addition to the price of goods, or to the charges for specific service. This view is sustained by the provision in the section referred to, which authorizes the persons liable to the tax thereby imposed to add the same to their rates of fare or charges for service. In the case of railroads, steamboats, and stage. case of railroads, steamboats, and stage-coaches, this addition can be easily made; but in the case of hackmen and cartmen it but in the case of hackmen and cartmen it is almost impossible to do so; and instead of being able to recover it from their patrons, they must, if held liable therefor, subtract it from their wages, which will rarely permit any diminution for taxes without making it appear oppressive, by rendering the business unprofitable. Where the law plainly imposes a tax, it must be collected, without regard to its being politic, equitable, or just; but where the authority is merely inferred, and the cause exists for grave doubts as to the intention of the Leggrave doubts as to the intention of the Legislature, it will be advisable to discriminate generally in favor of the-taxpayer, especially if, as in the present case, he belongs to a class whose alleged taxable receipts are the moderate wages of unskilled labor. I am of the opinion, therefore, that it is impolitic to require further returns and payments from the persons engaged in the business under consideration, and all assessors and their assistants will be instructed according

The Governor does not think it would be wise at present to confer the privilege of voting on the negroes, and believes Congress will not demand it. This is not an indispensable preliminary to the admission of their representatives, but he urges upon the Convention, as a matter of the plainest justice, as well as of wisdom, that laws for the most complete protection of the freedmen's civil rights be passed, and that their testimony be received in the courts. Without these, he says, the colored people will have no safeguard against the imposition of cruel or dishonest employers, and with them, he thinks, the emancipated people will be generally contended, industrious and enterprising, even in the absence of the exercise of the ballot. He also recommends that the Convention declare the ordinance of secession null and void, not repeal it, and of secession null and void, not repeal it, and advocates the adoption by the Legislature of the amendment prohibiting slavery.

SYMPTOMS.

Single bottle will last a month-to be used three time

The Symtoms of Catarrh are at first very slight. Per-sons find they have a cold, then they have frequent attacks, and are more sensitive to the changes of temperature. In this condition, the ness may be dry, or a slight discharge, thin and acrid, afterward thick and adhesive

As the disease becomes chronic, the discharges are increased in quantity and changed in quality; they are now thick and beavy, and are hawked or coughed off. The sepretions are offensive, causing a bad breath; the voice thick and nasal; the eyes are weak; the sense of smell assened or destroyed; deafness frequently takes place. Another common and important symptom of Catarrhis that the person is obliged to clear his throat in the morn. ing of a thick or slimy muceus, which has fallen from the head during the night. When this takes place the person may be sure that his disease is on its way to the lungs, and should lose no time in arresting it. The above are but few of the many Catarrhal symptoms Write for our pamphlet describing fully all symptoms; i will be sent FREE to any address Call for SEELYE'S CATARRH REMEDY and take no
